DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

- 1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:
 - (a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negatived by the manner in which the invention was made.
- 2. Claims 1-37 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Garner (US. Pat. No. 2,128,043).

Garner discloses nearly all that is recited in the claims since it teaches a process of extracting nicotine (corresponding to the claimed "reducing an amount of a constituent") from tobacco, wherein tobacco leaves containing approximately 10-25% by weight of water is placed into a filter-cloth bag and immersed in a liquefied (normally gaseous) hydrocarbon, such as propane (corresponding to the claimed "a hydrocarbon") at substantially room temperature (40-90 degrees F) and 3-30 pounds pressure per square inch — which obviously means that the extraction environment is below the critical point of the liquid hydrocarbon (and, hence, meets the "subcritial fluid" recitation). The tobacco-hydrocarbon mixture is left for several hours until a sufficient concentration of the extractives from the tobacco is obtained in the liquid, afterwhich said liquid is drawn off and directed to a tank, and the nicotine is separated, using any of a variety of methods, and used for various purposes. The liquid is then redirected back to the tobacco for further extractions (See entire document).

Regarding claims 2-4, while Garner may not specifically state that this process also reduces that amount of a secondary alkaloid or PAH, it follows that the same method that removes nicotine would also remove the other claimed constituents since the process can utilize liquid propane, and the extraction solvent, which is the same liquid used by Applicant which accomplishes the removal of the claimed constituents.

Regarding claims 15 and 17, while Garner may not disclose that citric acid or magnesium silicate is used for separating the constituents from the liquid hydrocarbon it does state that the extract can be treated with any suitable solvent to remove the nicotine, and other constituents, therefrom. And since either citric or magnesium based solutions are well-known in the use of liberating nicotine form solutions it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to have utilized the claimed substances for this purpose.

Regarding claim 30, while Garner may not specifically state that the tobacco has a pH of between 4-9, this is not deemed to patentably distinguish the claims from the reference since one having ordinary skill in the art would have arrived at the claimed pH, after routine experimentation, in order to find the optimal acidity under which to operate the process.

Response to Arguments

3. Applicant's arguments with respect to the claims have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Conclusion

4. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
